Head Teacher to Home – 21st October What has happened in school this week?

Welcome to our final newsletter of the half term. Time certainly does fly when you are having fun and this term has been no exception. The children at Lillington, as always, have shown how fantastic they are through their manners, behaviour and learning behaviours. We are that amazing that CWR are coming back to Lillington to celebrate us being a 'Star School' again!!! Over the next half term, we will be having a big push on attendance and lateness, it is so important that children attend school and are on time. Missing lessons not only has a negative impact on their academic progress but also their social development. Just look at the grid below to see how just missing a few days learning is such a substantial loss in learning time. In the newsletter moving forward I will be reporting on the school attendance for the week, we are aiming for 95% attendance each week. This will ensure we will be in line with national expectations for Primary schools. I know the children will rise to this challenge and it would be amazing to see us hit that target on a regular basis.

99%	2 days missed per year	10 lessons missed
98%	4 days missed per year	20 lessons missed
97%	6 days missed per year	30 lessons missed
96%	8 days missed per year	40 lessons missed
95%	10 days missed per year	50 lessons missed
94%	12 days missed per year	60 lessons missed
93%	14 days missed per year	70 lessons missed
92%	16 days missed per year	80 lessons missed
91%	18 days missed per year	90 lessons missed
90%	20 days missed per year	100 lessons missed

Reception have had a great last week of term. They have tried out their new waterproofs by jumping in puddles and playing in piles of leaves. They have had a pumpkin patch role play using wheelbarrows to collect their chosen pumpkins and taking them to the shop to be weighed and pay for them. They have also made pumpkin soup.

After learning lots about different materials Darwin have been investigating which material will make the best bunting. We decided that the best material would be light and waterproof and sorted our materials into these options using a Venn diagram. The children were able to make a prediction and are looking forward to exploring the results!

If Year 4 have come home smelling of toothpaste and vinegar this week...this is why. We have been setting up our week long experiment to see how toothpaste protects our teeth (by smearing it all over some eggs!)

This week, the children in Angelou have been both publishing and celebrating their outstanding pieces of narrative writing. They imaginatively and meticulously planned, composed and improved their ideas, ensuring that all the complex writing skills learned were skilfully included. What a group of inspirational authors and what a way to finish our first half term!

"The way" panted Grace as she hopped over the grass and picked flowers. Carefully, Lucas followed. Escaping the abandoned track, Grace and Lucas eventually stopped for a little break, searching for something in the way of a dimly-lit tree to sit in.

"Hey Grace, check this out!" yelled Lucas. Partially hidden by overgrown weeds and trees, was a little chair with the name engraved at the top along with a battered mattress and sofa. It all was placed neatly, almost as if someone lived there.

"Come on!" screeched Neil as he successfully opened the door. The personage followed El escaping the plan-life rest, they both did not stop. They both headlongly stopped and search for some communication.

"Look here!" exclaimed Neil in a good zone. Somewhat kind in the way that they could be able to see a prodigy. Neil had convinced a idea. Neil searched for it with his scythe-like gloves. What could it be? The other person pushed a scythe-like button. They had found a whole connection.

Stunned by the deafening sound, the creature dashed its way through the creature's hands. A scythe-like figure followed the man behind some things. They ran through the way in, and it became more difficult.

Screeched, boomed Serena of waking her out her joy. The rough branches for their life. Meticulously, Ronan sprang her. Escaping the ransacked ground, two kids slowed to a stroll to an exit.

"Get a move on!" bellowed Ronan. Scared and fatigued, Serena hobbled over. Led by horns and nettles, something poked out. Ronan knelt and pulled it was a dead red eyed wolf with dripping out its wound bursts.

Bursting into the clearing, the creature limped towards them. The limping creature arose and let out a raucous howl. They jumped up, threw a stone the way and hopped through the tree. They hobbled limped and slid towards tree.
